SC chief admits pressure on people's initiative

By Armand M. Macara

THE SUPREME COURT IS FEELING THE heat generated by the hostile between groups for and against revamping the Constitution through a signature campaign or people's initiative.

Chief Justice Antonio Panganiban yesterday admitted to receiving "some pressure," but said this would not affect the independence of the court, which, he added, would resolve the matter by the end of next week.

"Yes, there's pressure from people who are interested... but the court is used to pressure," Panganiban told justice reporters on the sidelines of an international judicial forum sponsored by the Supreme Court.

Malacanan is supporting Charter change (Article) either through the people's initiative or Congress ratifying the final a constituent assembly—two of the three modes of amending the 1987 Constitution. The third mode is through a constitutional convention where delegates are elected.

Panganiban did not say whether the pressure was coming from groups asking the high court to reverse the ruling of the Commission on Elections (Comelec) against changing the Constitution through a signature campaign.

Panganiban said the pressure "will not impede the court in deciding the case." Ten of the 15 members of the high court are appointees of Malacanan.

The Chief Justice said the court would test the Charter change issue "for some way we created three high-profile cases in May with importance."

He was referring to the cases involving the Presidential Proclamation No. 1037, which placed the country under a state of national emergency in the third week of February; Executive Order No. 163, which barred officials from traveling to Congress without the President's sign; and the calibrated preemptive response policy, which prohibited protest rallies without permits.

Cabinet revamp: Yap back to DA

By Gil C. Cabacungan Jr., Christine O. Arredondo and Christine A. Guejosa

THERE ARE MAJOR CHANGES IN THE Cabinet. Presidential Management Staff Director General Arthur Yap is going back to his old post as agriculture secretary 15 months after he gave up the plum portfolio to personally handle a tax evasion complaint lodged against his family.

Mid-afternoon announced President Macapagal-Arroyo's decision to appoint Yap in place of the incumbent, Donato Pangasinan, who has yet to be endorsed by the Commission on Appointments since taking over the Department of Agriculture in July 2005.

Executive Secretary Edilberto Irala also announced last night that five members will be the lead members of the National Anti-Poverty Commission in place of Jorge Remondeña, who will replace Yap as PMS chief.

Among those also affected in the latest Palace reshuffle was one of his Arroyo's closest pet officials, Ma. Elena Bautista, the busy chair of the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulate

Senate plans to probe PCGG's 20-year record

By Juliet Lasing-Javalina and Abner Papa

HAVING WON ITS CASE IN THE Supreme Court, the Senate is preparing to review the scope of the 20-year performance of the Presidential Commission on Good Government to cover the PCGG's performance in its 20-year existence. Sen. Richard Gordon said yesterday.

Gordon said the Senate would not only review the PCGG's Chief Executive Officer (who is in the United States) and the three commissioners just yet. He said it would do so only if they could be held to be held after sessions resume in Nov. 6.

But PCGG Commission Members Francis Abcede and Nestor Cruz expressed willingness to study face the Senate.

WHY'S CALLING THE SHOTS? Makati City Hall is under siege for business as usual on orders of the suspended Mayor Binay who continues to be interviewed in his office on the 21st floor.

Binay may be evicted if he is not out by Friday

By Gil C. Cabacungan Jr., Norman Borlido, Tanya V. Quinsam and Jocelyn R. Uy

FACED WITH MAYOR JEJOMAR BINAY'S DEFIANCE, THE government yesterday said it hoped the suspended city executive would peacefully leave the Makati City Hall to avoid being forcibly evicted from his 21st floor redoubt by Friday.

AFP, DILG hit Binay's 'illegal' fashion sense

By Dona Paz-Bugan, Norman Borlido and Philip C. Tabara

AN OPPOSITION LEADER YESTERDAY said suspended Makati Mayor Jejomar Binay could become a rallying point for antigovernment forces, while administration leaders claimed Binay is a sloppy dresser who could even be charged in court for illegally wearing a military uniform.

A Makati City association with the rank of a colonel, Binay wore the upper portion of a Marine battle fatigues uniform when he faced the media after binakulong ordered his private security to clear the way. The dress bore a more punk and the insignia of a colonel on the collar.

For this, Binay could be charged with violation of Article of War No. 97 on conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline, according to military public information chief Lt.

While bent on enforcing to promote suspension order against Binay, Malacanan, at the same time, appeared to be looking off using force as hundreds of employees returned to work in a City Hall ruled by two men—one backed by President Macapagal-Arroyo and the other by opposition forces.

In a press conference late last night, Binay said the suspension order came to him from his Arroyo.

"It is very clear and understandable that it is a GMA that authorized the order," he said, adding that the order was signed by President Benigno Aquino III "on the authority of GMA."

"Mayor Binay is a lawyer; he is a known political leader. It can be said he was enough to make a real decision on how to deal with or with others. Other would lead to the use of force," Binay said in reaction to Binay's claim that the government would have to kill him (he was taken out of City Hall).

Asked if the authorities would force Binay out if he failed within the next three days to get a court order instituting Malacanan, Binay said, "We are determined to serve the law. We will let the DILG (Department of the Interior and Local Government) handle the situation. I am sure they have their own plans. I cannot say that the would be badly contained now because I don't want to prevent Secretary Ronaldo Puno."

By Edison C. Tancos Jr.

THE 43,000 VILLAGERS OF MATILLO, Iloilo, are quickly changing poverty is not an excuse for not having access to health care or reducing high child mortality and malnutrition rates.

In finding out about the lives of the children as a way of ensuring a solid future, the people of Matillo in one of the country's most impoverished provinces have also started helping poor children.

Matillo is one of the 10 local government units to receive a special citation from the United Nations which recognizes efforts to fulfill a global promise to eradicate poverty by 2015.

This is the first time that the United Nations, in coordination with the Gawad Kalinga Foundation, gave special citations for efforts to achieve the millennium development goals.

Gawad is an annual nationwide awards program recognizing local government progress since 1994.

Declared by the United Nations and its member countries, in 2000, the challenge was specified into eight Millennium

Development Goals:

- Eradicate extreme poverty and hunger.
- Achieve universal primary education.

- Promote gender equality and empower women.
- Reduce child mortality.
- Improve maternal health.
- Combat the spread of HIV/AIDS, malaria and other diseases.
- Ensure environmental sustainability.

Another militant leader shot dead

MANILA (GMA)—MEMBERS OF A militant organization of urban poor living in the informal tracks in San Pablo City were shot dead by an unidentified gunman on about 7 a.m. yesterday.

Edwardo Milares, 50, was working to work when he was shot in the head and other parts of the body, according to Gen. Casula, secretary general of National Human Rights group in Southern Tagalog. He died on the spot.

A companion, Venancio Cordero, 42, survived the ambush, and being a gunshot wound in the right leg.

The gunman, who was armed with a 45-caliber pistol, opened about a 10-minute shooting at an act as a hideout during the shooting, Casula said.

Casula immediately placed the blame on the military which he said "has long been harassing the people living in the informal tracks with its unprovoked presence."

Milares was a member of the Federation of Magdaloanans in Tubbataha (FMTM)-Insularia, an organization of squatter communities composed of several barangays in the city's informal tracks.

'Cold-blooded murder'

Casula said the FMTM was allied with Batangas, another urban poor group, which the military named last year as a communist front organization. He said the killing may be linked to the SMTC's money operation in the territories of landlords and business along the informal tracks in San Pablo.

"We are certain that the military had a hand in this cold-blooded murder," he said.

Casula said the killing may have been motivated by the Army's 2005 military brigade based in San Pablo.

Brigade head Col. Jorge Rodriguez denied the charges, "cold-blooded murder" of the left against the military.

"From when we gathered, the victims were a police character," he said in a media photo interview.

Capt. Benny Rodriguez, the San Pablo police chief, said his bureau was assisted in the investigation by the local Trans-poration Office sometime in June.

"But he managed to get out," Rodriguez said.

He said Milares could have been killed because of an internal dispute among members of the military group.

The Batangas-Insularia Tagalog condemned the killing of Milares and immediately pointed to Army soldiers as being suspect.

"This killing is part of the desperate attempt of the national government to crush through with the family, but modernization project which will displace thousands of families in Southern Tagalog," said Abel Tolentino, the group's leader.

He said the military had put up detachments in the four barangays—San Antonio, San Jose, San Juan, and San Pablo—by the division.

Virtual martial law

The presence of the soldiers has put the entire community along the informal tracks in a virtual state of martial law, he said.

"The soldiers already impose all manner of curfew in the area last Aug. 15. Residents are not allowed to go out of their houses beyond 7 p.m.," he added.

He claimed southern anti-communism of the SMTC had been under surveillance.

Tolentino said the Army even "harassed" several residents in the house of SMTC president Myrta Orla to monitor her activities.

He added that Milares' house was just in front of Orla's.

"Others inside her family sometimes also don't go home any more because they're afraid of the military," he said.

SMTC and Batangas filed a dispute with the city council a day before Milares was killed during which members of the division were present and were seen taking pictures of the houses and members of the two urban poor groups.

"We have been opposing the military's presence since last two months. Most of us are being harassed by the soldiers. They have been chasing some of our houses and we are really harassed," Orla said.

Marina Ramos, Mila Garbino's colleague and Arlene T. Malabon, Insularia leader, said.

PAL cuts fuel fees by P100

PHILIPPINE AIRLINES announced yesterday it will reduce its fuel surcharge by P100 per round-trip flight effective Oct. 22, as the price of crude oil in the market has come down.

The airline said the move would benefit its passengers, especially those who are flying to and from the Philippines.

The price cut is expected to be P100 per round-trip flight, or P50 per one-way flight, depending on the route.

The airline said the move would benefit its passengers, especially those who are flying to and from the Philippines.

As with any thing, I'm not sure if it's a guarantee that you'll be better this. That's why I will regard my weight-loss options. I've found that you change one step at a time and I desire to do that with Marie France. It's just as effective, but Marie France's treatments are safer and reliable."

"With UShape around, everyone now gets a fair better alternative to lipos and crash diets!"

Despite the skepticism the piggybacker, I'm confident that they can keep the Super in top-top condition through the latest discovery—UShape! In fact, Marie France's UShape is safe, easy and convenient. When I was introduced to it, I immediately went to it. I loved Marie France so much. I was just then I was interested in giving her a treatment she might use on my body. I'm sure.

While I was having my session, The best thing was, I could feel my stomach becoming flatter a few weeks later. No doubt it's the perfect way to reduce those cellulites too!"

While she has nothing against people who opt for the fast and often drastic measures in some weight loss procedures, "Gone is a part of who we are. It's a part of self-perception. Looking good complements a certain part of you as a woman and as a person. It's just that some of us, myself included, back then, would have to pay too much at risk in exchange of having a better appearance. With UShape around, everyone now gets a fair better alternative to lipos and crash diets."

Having almost experienced in her risk as a bariatric and even more, Lyn happily states, "Looking your best while at the peak of health now becomes your job to yourself. Make it your body's work. You want there to be proud of you. As they grow, you want to see with them, and not after they have they become unrecognizable. When they're so much you want them to show, that's my mission." She's so beautiful! When she happens, I can already see myself as "Thank God for the latest options—UShape! Thank God for Marie France's UShape!"

24 years for Pinoy who killed sis-in-law, nephew in UK

By Mikee Geron

A PHILIPPINE MATEO, 24, was sentenced to 24 years imprisonment in the Court of Magistrates after a jury found him guilty of stabbing to death his sister-in-law and nephew, the Philippine Embassy in London said yesterday.

At 11:30pm July 26, Claudio Crisostomo, 24, was found guilty on two counts of murder, with a 12-year sentence for each count.

The verdict was handed down at Middlesbrough Crown Court.

Crust was told to serve his sentence before he can apply for parole, the embassy said.

Crust had admitted to stabbing Catherine Smith, 30, and her son, Sam, 11, with a kitchen knife but denied the charges of murder.

Another paper, the Chester Chronicle, reported that Crust's wife, Nellie, was "born between her husband and her family."

Wife testifies

It is reported that at the women stated, Nellie had said that her husband was "not in his right mind that day."

The killing took place on Dec. 3, 2001 inside the home that Crust and his wife shared with Claire and her family on Foster Road, Spina.

According to the newspaper reports, Crust had difficulties adjusting to life in the UK and had wanted to return to the Philippines.

On the day of the killings, the Crust couple had an argument about going back to the Philippines.

Nellie, who was employed at a catering house, had already left for work when her husband attacked his sister and nephew who had just arrived from the Philippines.

Crust was charged with murder, and the boy is a minor.

Extended family

Crust's mother had been living in Britain since 2000. They were joined by the Crusts from their home.

Ed Malaya, acting foreign affairs spokesperson, said due to "the more likely" fact, they "discussed" the matter with regular media reports.

"The embassy extended assistance to their victim families and the accused, by assistance to national officers attended the trial and ensured that the Crusts had representation and that a Filipino interpreter was at the trial," Malaya said.

The embassy said that while the trial was continuing, it was in cooperation of support from the Philippine community in Chester, which for the victims' and the accused's families.

"The embassy made sure that there were no other Filipino present during the trial."

RP peacekeeper caught with bullets at Singapore airport

By Nicko Dano

THE PHILIPPINE CONTINGENT of the UN Peacekeeping Force in East Timor (FET) did not make it to their destination after one of its members was fatally detained in Singapore when fire bullets were discovered in her bag.

Members of the Force were held by the Singapore Police Force for investigation, according to documents obtained by the Inquirer.

The 30-man UN Peacekeeping contingent from the FET left Manila on Oct. 14 for Singapore Airlines flight SQ75.

They were enroute to connecting flight from Singapore's Changi airport to Denpasar, Bali, Indonesia and on to East Timor.

According to the documents, the group advanced Singaporean authorities that they will not continue to be in East Timor if the UN could not be allowed to work with them.

Authorities denied the claim but instead let the officer who was preparing for all the members of the UN Peacekeeping Force to be offloaded from their connecting flight.

The Singapore police confirmed the bullets.

The police further delayed the connecting flight out of Singapore for 12 minutes.

Government now what it did was a security breach at the Singapore International Airport, as well as the inconvenience the delay brought to other passengers, the police primarily brought the incident to the attention of the UN Peacekeeping Group 2009.

The police informed the ANI that there had been armed threats when passengers from Manila were carrying money back to their connecting flight in the Singapore airport had been caught with the bullets during their possession.

The ANI and the Manila International Airport Authority (MIAA) had been warning Philippine residents against bringing bullets in their flight as international standards require those items prohibited in air travel (ATC).

Law bullets should be properly stored and classified.

Despite the security lapse by the ANI, the MIAA also reported about on a daily basis 10 passengers who were on flight with their bullets in their bags.

The Singapore police confirmed the bullets.

Prying open the PCGG

POWER NOT ONLY CORRUPTS BUT AFFIRMEDLY enlarges the mind too. Or how else can one explain the extraordinary display of ignorance by some of the country's top lawyers when President Manuel Angeles' record was being interviewed, like Camille Sabido, a valedictorian of the Ateneo College of Law, or Eduardo Natchan, a law professor and author of law books? Sabido, who is chair of the Presidential Commission on Good Government, challenged the authority of the Senate to make him testify on matters related to his office. Natchan, as the solicitor general, defended his defiance. Both showed a striking deficit before the Supreme Court along with everyone else in Manila who had rushed into Solid's defense.

The Senate committee on government corporations had earlier summoned Sabido and his associates to replace the huge losses allegedly incurred by the sequenced Philcoram Holdings Group. They all refused to do so, saying they were allowed by law to keep close to their clients anything related to the functions of the PCGG. They cited in particular a provision of Executive Order No. 1, which says: "No member or staff of the commission shall be required to testify or produce in any judicial, legislative or administrative proceeding concerning matters within its official competence."

Senators argued that the EO, which was promulgated in February 1997 ending a brief military government, was repealed by the 1987 Constitution. They said the provision violated the principle of public accountability of all government officials and curbed the right of Congress to conduct investigations in aid of legislation. And because it was in conflict with these constitutional provisions, that provision could no longer be considered part of the law. Legal experts, like El Manobo Perez, S.J., pointed out that it is basic to a democracy that any law that is inconsistent with the fundamental law is invalid even if it has not been formally repealed by the legislature.

And that is exactly how the Supreme Court ruled after Sabido and his associates for ignoring a Senate subpoena to enter their law to appear before the committee on government corporations. Voting unanimously, the Court upheld the Senate position that it can summon PCGG officials to testify as competent witnesses. The Court said the intention that EO 1 conferred on PCGG officials was "in compliance with the principle of public accountability" since it put them "beyond the reach of the courts. Congress and administrative law bodies." It also declared that Congress' power to investigate was "beyond those of other officials of the executive branch" and reaffirmed an earlier ruling that "the power of inquiry is co-extensive with that of power to legislate."

With that legal issue now settled, the Filipino people will finally get a peek into the intrigues in the PCGG and the implications that are under government supervision. Perhaps, they will get to know more about the many plots and intrigues being enjoyed by the commission and the government members in the boards of these corporations and come to understand how some companies have been driven close to bankruptcy. And they might come to know more about the deals being negotiated—such as the one involving the shares in San Miguel that were purchased with the common law fund—before they are consummated.

In some of these companies, the people have been—or continue to be—robbed—all over again. Opening them up to public scrutiny just might help stop or eliminate the grand larceny.

Bamboo reed vision

VIEWPOINT

JOSE L. MERCADO

"DO NOT LOOK AT THE REEDS THROUGH A bamboo net," an antiquarian's proverb once said, for the one who sees only those that emerge from his net, then just in quickly to see it.

The little floods of Cebu City in Southern Leyte and Misamis Oriental have begun to become a nuisance and threaten to swamp. Unsettled land areas in Marikina Bay slipped into the muddy pages in huge bays and bays. In the past, the muddy bays and bays were used for growing rice. The muddy bays and bays were used for growing rice. The muddy bays and bays were used for growing rice.

In some, everything is constructed, so there are no displaced persons. But in some, the displaced persons are growing rice. The displaced persons are growing rice. The displaced persons are growing rice. The displaced persons are growing rice.

Long bamboo reeds, however, still look like bamboo today. The bamboo is still in the ground. The bamboo is still in the ground. The bamboo is still in the ground. The bamboo is still in the ground.

Let us just say, the bamboo is still in the ground. The bamboo is still in the ground. The bamboo is still in the ground. The bamboo is still in the ground. The bamboo is still in the ground.

Why are they afraid to bring the issue of People's Initiative to the Filipino people?

1 There is no truth to claims by certain self-interested quarters that the new Constitution will reduce the powers of the Supreme Court as defined by the 1987 Constitution. Absolutely no truth. It is not commonsensical to antagonize the Supreme Court.

2 There is no definite legal doctrine on the difference between amendment and revision. Even if there is and the People's Initiative can propose only amendments, the proposal to shift to a parliamentary system—resulting in the fusion of the Legislative and Executive branches of government—is an amendment and not a revision.

3 It has been said that only a Constitutional Convention or a Constituent Assembly of Senators and Congressmen can revise the Constitution. Yet the Senators and Congressmen are only Representatives or Agents of the people. It is therefore clear that the people themselves—the Sovereign Filipino People—as the Principals can by themselves amend or revise the Constitution by direct action—the People's Initiative.

4 The 6.3 million signatures verified by Comelec registrars nationwide, in every province and congressional district in support of the People's Initiative petition, constitute a great number of Filipinos in this debate on Charter amendments. The number far exceeds the minimum constitutional requirement of 12 percent of registered voters nationwide for the initiative to prosper.

5 The figure also confirms the steady mounting increase—periodically tracked by public opinion surveys—in the Filipino people's support for the shift to a parliamentary system of government. It was 10 percent last year. By September this year, the figure jumped to 48 percent. Now it has exceeded 52 percent. Those for People's Initiative number 48 percent; for Constituent Assembly 28 percent; and for Constitutional Convention, favored by Senators, only 22 percent.

6 This growing support sends an unmistakable message: Filipinos are fed up with the presidential system and the political culture of negative politics that it has bred. They are fed up with the constant fighting among Senators and Congressmen, the Senate's failure to pass hundreds of critical laws, and the unending and often wild attacks by Senators on the President. Let's put an end to this democracy of deadlock, an end to negative and destructive politics.

7 Charter reform is the last remaining hope of the nation to bring about a new political system and make the country stable at home, competitive abroad, and respected in the community of nations.

8 The Comelec's dismissal of the petition was anchored on a non-existing doctrine because the Santiago ruling is only an opinion applicable only to the Delfin and Pirma cases of 1997 and not to the present Sigaw ng Bayan or any other People's Initiative petition.

9 Since there are clashing views on Charter reform and the People's Initiative to amend the Constitution, then why don't we let the Filipino people decide the issue once and for all? Indeed, why are the opposition, the habitual critics, the spokesmen of the status quo, afraid to bring the issue to a nationwide plebiscite—for a direct vote by the Filipino people? Why are they raising technicalities at the Comelec and at the Supreme Court to prevent Charter reform from reaching the people and being decided by the people once and for all?

10 Let us call a national plebiscite—and let the Filipino people themselves decide the fate of Charter reform. Let them vote "Yes" or "No" on this historic amendment—the shift from a bicameral presidential to a unicameral parliamentary government.

Liz sues Willie for abuse

TV host's wife says she's had enough

By Ed Yap
and Rapuhan Diego Jr.

IT SEEMS THAT WILLIE REYES' legal and marital woes are far from over.

Just days after his wife filed for "Liz" Reyes had sought the annulment of their marriage, the popular host of ABS-CBN's newscast show, "Newsworld," was accused of displaying violent behavior toward himself and his wife.

The criminal complaint was filed by Reyes, 39, on Tuesday at the Quezon City prosecutor's office.

It has complaints, like charged, Reyes, 45, with violating Republic Act 9262—the law protecting women and children from violence—for allegedly threatening to beat her and their son during one of their fights.

According to her, the incident occurred around midnight of Aug. 6 inside their house at 15 Luna St., Sports Heights Hills, Old Manila in Quezon City.

Unexpected behavior

Reyes said she was just asking Reyes what was wrong when he started beating her, threw at her and throwing his arms, hitting their baby, who had been sleeping in the playpen.

The child woke up and started crying, prompting Reyes to pick him up, but Reyes allegedly grabbed the baby and pushed her aside. "While holding the child on one arm, his other arm lifted the playpen and threw it away... I was crying and begging him to give back the baby to me," Reyes said.

When she approached her, she, the latter allegedly picked up a lamp and hit her. "If you don't stop, you'll get hurt," he once said. Reyes' lawyer called Reyes and gave her back the baby. The TV host then packed his bags and left the house, she added.

Play incident

She cited other incidents in which Reyes allegedly abused his children, including one incident in May in which he had thrown a chair in her direction, but it was blocked by Reyes' lawyer.

In another incident, he allegedly threw a remote control at the bed, nearly hitting their baby, Reyes said.

According to Reyes, her husband's violent behavior started in November 2003 after the last girl was born.

"It's too much"

She added that it took her a long time to file a complaint because she wanted to keep her family together. "But now, I think if we can still save the marriage, it's too much. I can no longer take what he did," she said in her complaint.

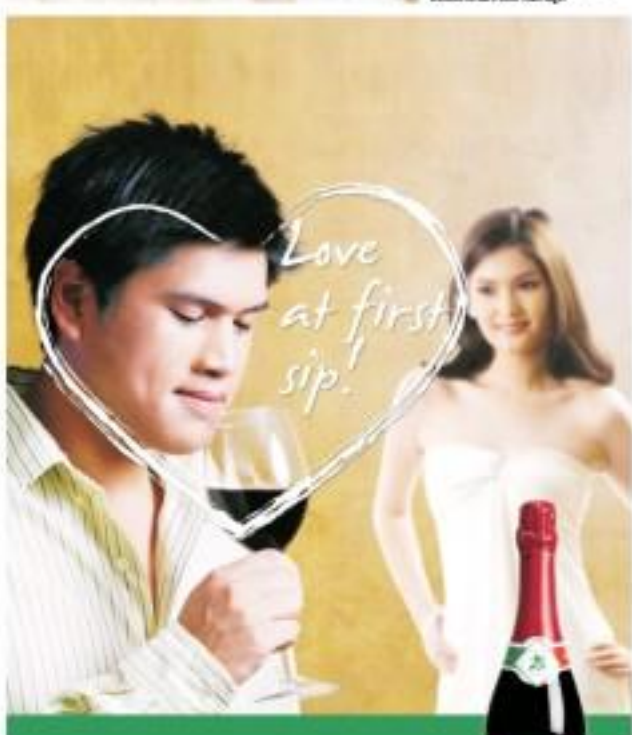

On Oct. 5, Reyes had filed for annulment at a Quezon City court which issued a gag order preventing media from talking about the case.

An Amorsolo emerges from his grandfather's shadow

By Cindy Palacios-Oliver Contributor

THE AMORSOLO CAN ALSO just like his grandfather.

Rafel, Amorsolo's grandson, president of Pambuco Investments, the company's first National Artist, also studied in Europe and Paris.

"At a child, I remember watching my Lolo Marcellino whenever he was painting. Rafael, Marcellino, his family and friends, and so on," he said.

Marcellino Amorsolo is more than a national artist to him. He is a great man, family and generous," he added.

This is the first interview Rafel, who is looking 60 today, has given to media. For most of his life, he has preferred to live in his grandfather's shadow, but now, he is coming forward, not because he wants the publicity but to pay tribute to his Lolo Marcellino.

"I want the people to know that Lolo Marcellino left a very great legacy to his family and to his country," he said.

He had realized that as a child, he and his grandfather, who was known as Lolo Marcellino, were not just a family but a legacy.

Rafel is the only son of painted Pambuco Investments, a company that is the main branch of the Amorsolo family.

Orphaned at an early age, Rafel's father died of pneumonia when he was barely two months old. His father, Lolo Marcellino, also became sick and died a year later. After his death, Lolo Marcellino, who was his uncle, took care of him.

Rafel still gets inspired whenever he remembers his childhood. He has had memories of his grandfather, a handsome, well-known man in his family.

"We were able to survive because of the financial assistance coming from Lolo Marcellino, who was his uncle. He and his wife, Lolo Marcellino, also helped us to survive, from childhood to college," he said.

Other relatives like Francisco Amorsolo, including J. Amorsolo, Jr., Geron, Orla and Marcellino, also played a role in his life.

Change of plans

ROCK FACE-OFF

Colt 45 Rockista Final Leg
Yields 2 Finalists Instead Of One;
11 Amateur Vocalists To Vie For
P450,000 & A Recording Contract

Thirty thousand screaming spectators witnessed a rock duel in the last leg of Colt 45 Rockista on MTV at the SNE Mall OC last last October 14.

What originally was supposed to be a contest for ONE final rock artist.
THAT is what an amateur vocalist drama featuring three and three de three brought it all together in the South Islands Regional Finals - the first in the national chain of events. It - which also featured performance by the famous rock bands like Popul (Socorro), Shogun, Sengul, and and Colt 45's own Rockista.

During identical round-robin shows, three and de three each performed a live set and that helped to break the tie. But due to their overwhelming talent and rock music, judges Jimmy Darnell Bridges, Stanley I. Johnson of MTV, and Wayne "Shane" Brown of thousands of fans voted both as winners. Thus, they each performed in a 10,000 and earned the right to continue their quest to become the country's next rock icon by entering the final dubbed Colt 45 Rockista on MTV's Judgment Day.

Over twelve days were later introduced together with the 9 other finalists in a special MTV segment hosted by SNE Mall's Rockista.

Colt 45 Rockista on
MTV's Judgment Day
begins every Monday beginning October 22 at

Expanded VAT nets P48.4B in Jan.-Aug.

PRESIDENT Manobo and Trade Secretary Peter Fernandez walk up to the 4th CEO Forum of the Securities and Insurance Industries in the Philippines Inc. at the Shangri-La Hotel in Manila City where he is the guest of honor.

Keeps gov't on track in meeting 2006 target

By Michelle K. Banao

THE EXPANDED VALUE-ADDED TAX LAW HELPED RAISE P48.4 billion in additional revenues from January to August, surpassing the P45.8-billion target set by revenue authorities for the eight-month period and as for keeping the government on track to meet its fiscal reform goals.

The ability of the government to raise the extra P75 billion in additional revenues this year from the implementation of the expanded VAT, expanded the success of the device adopted since 1993 when it took its steady being measured by similar studies and revenue rising time.

The implementation of the expanded VAT, an important measure that would strengthen budgeting to Congress, helped the Philippines get a "positive" outlook from credit-rating firms, boosting the expected revenue from the 12 percent tax on services for the whole year, however, has some critics in helping the Philippines get a share in the global credit rating.

The IMF has recently expanded the coverage of the impact to include, among others, all businesses, and raised the tax rate to 12 percent from 10 percent. The law also raised the corporate income tax rate to 35 percent from 32 percent.

Statements from the Department of Finance showed that of the P48.4 billion in additional revenues collected for the last eight months of the year, the Bureau of Customs accounted for P36.6 billion, exceeding its P34.6-billion target.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue contributed P11.8 billion, also higher than its target of P7.9 billion.

The IMF improves the IMF on goods produced and services rendered locally under Customs changes effects on imports.

"This revenue contribution to the VAT is very important because it has provided that there will be no reduction in the year's budget for allocated to infrastructure and social services," Finance Secretary Banao said.

Shares close higher

SHARE PRICES CLIMBED 2.1 PERCENT higher yesterday as local investors began buying stocks for the first time in two weeks and made strong gains. Stocks rose 2.1 percent to 10,000.33, after falling since Oct. 10, 2006. The broader all-share index rose 1.11 percent to 10,000.33.

Global net flows from IPOs, with Nov. 2006, showed a net inflow of P2.7 billion, down from P1.7 billion.

"The market was quite sluggish because of the lack of positive news from the government and the lack of positive news from the market," said analysts from the Philippine Investment Council.

"This is a good sign that the market is beginning to show signs of recovery," said analysts from the Philippine Investment Council.

Mining stocks fall

SINGAPORE—SOUTHEAST Asian markets were mixed on Wednesday as investors moved prices for commodities such as oil and metals. Philippine Mining Corp., while better than expected, ended lower on Thursday. The stock closed at 1.02 percent.

By midday yesterday Singapore's Straits Times Index fell 12.35 points, and Indonesia's Jakarta Composite Index fell 0.22 percent.

But the metals rose 0.19 percent by early trading of metals. Indonesian shares fell 0.05 percent, while Philippine shares ended 0.12 percent.

In Manila, copper and gold stocks were the only ones to rise. Paper Mining Corp., which owns the only open-pit copper mine in the Philippines, fell 0.22 percent.

Gold prices weakened on speculation as a drop in crude oil prices weighed on the commodity, while the U.S. and other prices continued to fall, setting their second high in the London Metals Exchange earlier this week.

Manila Mining Corp., an affiliate of gold miner Anglo Consolidated Mining Co., fell 0.48 percent.

In Jakarta, PT International Nickel Indonesia Tbk, the Indonesian unit of Canadian nickel producer Inco, fell 1.2 percent, while PT Freeport Indonesia Tbk, the Indonesian unit of U.S. nickel producer Freeport, fell 0.48 percent.

Indonesia's largest nickel producer Inco, which owns the only open-pit nickel mine in the Philippines, fell 0.22 percent.

Bush to push free trade at Apec

Initiative part of US-led reforms

WASHINGTON—US PRESIDENT GEORGE W. Bush is expected to push for a plan to improve the protection of free trade initiatives in the Asia-Pacific region at the annual Apec summit in Hanoi next month.

But more is part of intense long-term campaign by Bush to open the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (Apec) forum, comprising 11 developing and developed economies in the region, to a more US-style free trade agreement.

"We can't open the door with one hand and keep it closed with the other," said Bush in a speech last week. "We need to have both hands open."

There are presently open 100 free trade agreements and regional trading arrangements in force in the Asia-Pacific region, including the United States, China, Japan, Korea, India and the European Union.

Some of the free trade initiatives in the region are aimed at reducing trade barriers, such as lowering tariffs, and others are aimed at improving trade facilitation, such as improving customs procedures.

But the free trade initiatives in the region are also aimed at improving trade facilitation, such as improving customs procedures, and others are aimed at improving trade facilitation, such as improving customs procedures.

The US Demo Kitchen was unveiled recently at the CCA complex in Esmeralda Avenue, Quezon City. US Ambassador to the Philippines Kristie Rayner presided over the event, to a full house of the Regional US Trade Association and key executives. Also in attendance were members of the Council of Chefs, a group of US educational institutions.

"We have been a longstanding partnership that promotes the creativity of Philippine chefs, supports US culinary training and US products," said Rayner at the dedication ceremony.

Regional hub

The project is spearheaded by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) in partnership with the CCA. CCA chefs operating the USDA, as well as members of the Council of Chefs, will experience the training facilities on-site. Certain facilities will be open to the public free of charge.

The US Demo Kitchen is envisioned to be a regional hub for US culinary training to become a US-only Philippines hub for other Asian chefs.

According to the USDA, "The goal is to enhance the knowledge to a broader base of audience within a shorter period of time."

Baking demo

To showcase the facility, past chef Fred Plater and training head, all facilities combined a baking demo, live pastry demos, live, which took off the baking and Pastry Baking, the first set of training sessions for October and November. Other modules to be offered over the next few months include: Cakes and Confectionery, The art of Cakes, Pastry and Wine Pairing, Food Safety and Foodservice Nutrition.

Good chef Fred Plater comes from a family of bakers in Italy. In fact, his surname "Plater" is an old Italian surname for "baker." The chef shared that his grandfather owned a small hotel and bakery in Switzerland. When grandfather retired, the son, an excellent pastry chef, continued the business.

"So around 1940 I spent many hours working my dad at work and later followed in his footsteps as a master of confection," said

Are there certain types of food consumed during the routine or preferred food to break the fast?

That really, but there we find good, so that we would be good for you to take care, the best to know. In the Philippines, we take bread in long and long, the bread, while in South, they take dairy, which we were actually not.

Chief DeLoe speaks at the Ramadan dinner "breaking fast with dates and pouring lotion after [Islamic] ablution," most served at the end of the day during Ramadan, act of eating after fasting) are both mentioned in the Islamic literature. Dr. Philip M. Hirschman (PHM) said, "I see one of you is fasting, so I am breaking the fast with you."

The Trough (PH-3) used to harvest fish was by raising traps before collecting enough mud. If the traps were not available, he used to catch other dead species.

"The body reacts to the high sugar content of dates. The sugar of dates travels quickly to the liver and is converted into energy more quickly than other nutrients. After fasting, Muslims have immediate need for energy for prayer and to sustain their culture."

Times have a special place in Islam and among the Prophet (PBUH) frequent consumption of food, for the reasons, the benefits of dates are both physical and spiritual. The act of consuming the Prophet (PBUH) (salat) is one way of remembering him. The Prophet (PBUH) and a house without dates had no food.
